Craftex drum flap sander

Grizzly G8749 Flap Sander This is a great machine. I don't use the flap part. I've read a lot of comments about how difficult it is, and some even say dangerous. So, I use the small bladder on one side, with 80 grains and the large one with 150 grains. I mainly use it to clean rounded corners (with routers) to build outdoor furniture. I use a portable bike pump and it's probably less than 10 psi because I think I push too hard and it would be too aggressive in a higher PSI. When I was looking for one for the first time, ... Read this review» Grizzly G8749 Flap Sander The only other review I found on this sanders was published 1300 days ago. I found this car on Craigslist about six months ago and have been using it quite a bit ever since. He's a beast of power. Very straight forward and simple to use. I used and wasted my money on many smaller flap sanders on the drill press with less than large results. This machine will cut your WAY down sanding time. There will be square edges and round them quickly and accurately. Projects such as cutt... Read this review » Grizzly G8749 Flap Sander I do and sell many chopping boards. 50% or more of the time involved is sanding, so I'm always looking for ways to reduce sanding time. It becomes decidedly tiring to smooth the rounded edges with a ROS, especially when I finish 10 boards at a time. I'd heard of Flap Sanders, but I didn't know much about it. What amazed me when searching the Internet found very few companies that do them. What I found was the Grizzly G8749. I used it for about...
